Monday, September 27, 2012 Sturm and Drang I met Bobbi Brown via her Makeover YouTube series, where she did a couple of makeovers on her clients. I like her makeovers and she has an eye for creating simple and chic looks that look amazing on their clients, so I was excited to hear she was starting up a new line of makeup. I was browsing online one day and she was posting a really nice look someone had done with her makeup. I thought, "I could totally do that". I emailed her and was thrilled when she said yes! I flew to NY last month to shoot the photo shoot and put together a couple of looks for review. The exciting news is, she's releasing her first makeup collection. A 10 piece set, which will range in price. The first two launches include the Foundation and Blush. Bobbi Brown Velvet Liquid Matte Foundation is a high coverage product that feels light and fresh. I have experienced this before with Neutrogena Makeup. The high coverage can be drying, so the product needs to be used carefully around the nose and eyes, especially if your skin is extra dry. I wore this foundation all day during my photo shoot and later in the evening, the dryness was controlled enough so I didn't have any problems with the foundation drying up. The blush is a pigment rich matte. I liked the colors in this blush. I have a similar blush by Bourjois, but Bobbi Brown was easier to blend on my skin. As for the strobe, I was surprised that there was such a difference, I could barely see my skin with strobe, whereas without the strobe it appeared as though I had foundation on. I should probably have tried it with and without, but I was in the middle of a big shoot and I was too nervous to try it out. Bobbi Brown Velvet Liquid Matte Foundation is available in the Estee Lauder counter, online, and in department stores. The Foundation is $35 per foundation and the blush is $25. Bobbi Brown Velvet Liquid Matte Blush is available online or in stores. It is $22. Looks both looks pretty and professional
