A: Any idea why in this error you can use get install.rar or set install.rar in a archive software? Have you tried it? Maybe it's a small problem in your archive utility. I use a software called 7zip and all works fine. If you download a zip archive, you need to open a zip archive. Q: Python - How do I use unicode for special character in strings? I am creating a game for a class. One of the requirements is that a number represent the player score. I thought, if they want, I could use unicode values. My problem is, I'm trying to print the number for display, but if I print the number as a string, it prints like so: \x00100 Whereas, if I print the same number as a unicode string: # ^{2}, which is Unicode \u00B2, but using ascii strings print '^{2}' How do I convert this decimal value to a unicode string? Is there a better way to do this? A: x is a string (bytes, actually), not a number, so you need to convert it to a string first. >>> x = '\x00100' >>> str(x) '\x00100' >>> print x ^{2} BTW, according to the rules of the Python language, the numerical value of a variable can be represented directly as a Python string: >>> print '^{2}' ^{2} >>> print '\x00100' ^{2} >>> print '100' 100 >>> print '00100' 100 Q: Which is the method for assessing the validity of a hypothesis? We observe a large number of indicators $X_1,...,X_n$, each measured at different time periods 2d92ce491b
