Again, the specifics of that deal are yet to be fully worked out, but it has the potential to be one of the league's biggest moves this offseason. That's because the players benefit from a change in cap structure. The Jaguars would have more salary cap space to work with, and the players would be far more motivated to extend themselves for a team that is coming off a 10-6 season and in the thick of the playoff race. The Jaguars are looking to add quality depth at linebacker, as well. Look for Jacksonville to be one of the biggest names to step up in free agency. 4. The New York Jets 1 of 4 They've been one of the NFL's best teams over the past five years, but can the Jets maintain that level of play? In fact, they've only been better than the Patriots twice in that span. The Jets have plenty of holes to fill this offseason. The roster has holes at defensive end, left tackle and, of course, quarterback. On the offensive side of the ball, the Jets have two more holes than the Patriots, at wide receiver and tight end. What's more, those holes are bigger than the ones on their roster. They signed both LaRon Landry and Bart Scott this offseason, but neither will be a long-term solution at one of the league's most important
