Kogent Solutions Inc. JDBC uses a dedicated database driver, while JCA uses an EIS-Recourse adapter to communicate with EIS. 8 . The next step will add the GetRecourse method and define the ISqlRecourse interface. This means that this method will be called by the system and return a Recourse collection, which is a shared object of the IRecourse interface, because all Recourse objects can be considered shared objects. If the Recourse object does not exist, then it will be created. nine . Next, the Connection class will be defined to connect to the database. 10 . The next step will add the GetRecourse method: 11 .
