Its just a small library for crysis 2 but great tutorial for a game like C&C. When I found this tutorial I have decided to make a request to the creator to add the maps that are missing because theres a lot of maps in the pdf and you cant see them all at once. If you're cool and have time, add the maps and i'll add some of the credits. That would be great :D I am done with DDO forever. I cannot even play it for free. The game has a lot of issues, and the devs have already stopped taking care of things and just telling you its "normal". The game is terrible and should be dropped, I hate it with a passion. Keep that in mind when you are dealing with bit sizes, and where your memory is at! Because where you place it is an important factor. If you need a character that is fully devoted to one faction, perhaps that guild should be the one faction you choose to play through all of the available content that that faction has to offer, before moving onto the next. One of the items a few years ago was to offer the "faction" as the path to a specific character specialization that was highly suggested on the forums. This was accomplished by having the entire experience associated with a specific faction, that would eventually lead you to a preset specialization. If you went to a specific "friend" you would be granted access to the associated faction's content. The leveling experience that could be associated with the faction would be as follows. 1.
